

Hungarian Refugee Going Home in Style

From Reuters

WARSAW—Thirty-eight years after crawling in the snow past armed soldiers patrolling the Hungarian border, Charles Tasnadi is going back to Hungary today in President Bush's presidential jet.

For Tasnadi, 64, a news photographer, it will be his first trip home since the night in 1951 when he and his fiancée, Maria, escaped to the West through the "Iron Curtain."

Tasnadi, who began working for the Associated Press in 1964, is among a small group of media people flying with Bush from Gdansk in Poland to Budapest.
